Connecting People and Nature: History, Education and Adventure

Dear Summer Camp Families,

We've made it through a difficult spring filled with uncertainty, and we are thrilled to be able to offer the first year of Adventure Day Camp, this summer. Despite Moab opening up again, CFI is still aware of the risks associated with Coronavirus and have taken the time to put the following mitigation tactics in place:

Before the programs:

- Each program staff member must complete a symptom screening questionnaire before interacting with participants.
- Each participant must complete a symptom screening questionnaire to participate in summer camp.

During the programs:

- Proper social distancing methods will be practiced as much as possible, and staff will remain vigilant about this.
- Hand washing stations will be made whenever possible. Hand washing will be required before eating meals.
- Hand sanitizer will be made available for participants and staff.
- We are reducing the number of campers within the vehicles, and using multiple vehicles when necessary to maintain adequate spacing within the vehicle.
- All staff and participants will be required to wear a mask when in the vehicles or other close quarters.
- Educational supplies will be assigned to student to use for the duration of the program to minimize sharing of materials.

After the programs:

- All personal gear such as PFDs will be completely cleaned and sanitized after use.
- Personal gear will be assigned to participants for the duration of the trips and not shared.
- Contact surface such as door handles will be sanitized.

These guidelines have been created in accordance with CDC, state, and local health guidelines. Please reach out to us with any questions or concerns regarding summer camp safety. Because the situation is evolving these guidelines, and our overall summer camp operations, may change. You can expect full an open communication from us as this situation evolves.

Thank you for your support and trust through this difficult time.

See you soon,
The CFI staff
